GLENDALE 11 RECEIVES 4 EMMY NOMINATIONS FOR THE SECOND YEAR IN A ROW

GLENDALE, Ariz. -- Glendale's city cable station, Glendale 11, has received four nominates for this year's Rocky Mountain Emmy Awards, which will be held on Oct. 6, 2007 at the Renaissance Hotel in Glendale's Westgate City Center.

Glendale will compete against TV stations, production companies and advertising agencies from Arizona, Utah and New Mexico.

The Emmy awards, given by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, recognize and reward excellence in the television broadcast community. Only a few government TV stations were nominated this year, with Glendale being one of only three Arizona cities to make the finals. Overall, Emmy entries were up a record 40 percent this year.

The Rocky Mountain Southwest Chapter includes three states: Arizona, Utah and New Mexico. Nominees include network affiliated stations, cable stations and companies, public and student stations, private production companies, advertising agencies and government television stations.

Glendale 11 was nominated for the following entries:

- Documentary Topical: Making of the Stadium: Joe Larger and Cary Pfeffer
- Magazine Program: Program Special: Laurie Berg Sapp
- Program Editor(non-news): Making of the Stadium: Joe Large
